New Instructors

Please join us in welcoming Carlton Joyner and Richard White to the North Carolina Justice Academy! Carlton Joyner comes to us from Greenville Police Department where he was a school resource officer for many years as well as a vice/narcotics investigator, and bike patrol officer. He is filling the new instructor position for Community Oriented Policing and will be managing the Community Police Certificate Program.

For the past 23 years, Richard White has worked in the CJ field; he has worked for NC DOC, Emporia PD in VA, and as a Sergeant with Roanoke Rapids PD. Since 1998, he has been an instructor with specialties in Firearms, Subject Control and Physical Fitness. He earned a Master's Degree in CJ from Kaplan University, with a concentration in Policing (2011), and was in the Alpha Phi Sigma National Criminal Justice Honor Society. He is filling the new instructor position for Use of Force Instructor/Coordinator.

Use of Force Simulators

The Academy has purchased two Use of Force Simulators – one for each campus. The use of force simulators will be used to introduce officers to a variety of situations where they will have to use past training, along with information provided during classroom instruction, to address confrontational individuals. The simulator scenarios will offer a wide variety of situations where officers will need to use interpersonal communication skills in an attempt to deescalate a situation prior to force becoming the only option. A key component of the instruction will also involve a report writing segment, with strong emphasis on articulation and documentation, to demonstrate that the level of force used was consistent with General Statute and current case law. We are looking forward to their arrival in May.
